Description

It seems if you change code as it normally does the little yellow dot appears up top editor as usual, and if you then undo what you just did the dot goes away or edit back to the previous as it should.

But, if you change code and then click save as up top, which then brings up the save as requestor as usual, if you cancel this or close without saving it, it saves and updates your file regardless and the little yell dot disappears.

It should not save file or yell dot disappear in reality until you click save.

I'll close this ticket as now a new editor is underway, so it will be irrelevant shortly.

If this occurs on the new online/offline editor I'll create another ticket.
